The members included: First tenors: Fred E. Cheever, James P. Knipe, Frank G. McCarthy Jr., John Patti, James F. Scholfield and Earle Simon; second tenors: J. Edward Contois, Harold Holt, William Kochanzky, Clarence F. Mosher, John M. Murray, Arthur Pitman, Chester S. Pula, Edward R. Romeo and Ainslee L. Scholfield; baritones: Alfred W. Constantineau, Douglas M. Dunbar, Stewart F. Easton, Oliver Kirk, John M. Knowles, John Lynch, Dana A. Peterson, Richard S. Pieters, Robert Prescott, Jr., George K. Sanborn, J. B. Carrington Thomas and Carl A. Wetterberg; basses: Peter Southwick, David Anderson, Davis A. Forbes, Robert Galloway, F. Milton Howard, Dr. Leslie S. Jolliffe, Richard

Some of the ills that beset the textile industry in Massachusetts were outlined by Rep. Frank J. Giles Jr., of Methuen, to the Andover Service club at its meeting last Thursday night at the Andover Inn.

Rep. Giles is a member of the special legislative commission appointed last summer to study the migration of the industry since 1929 and to propose legislation to keep the remaining mills in Massachusetts.

The commission has held several hearings in public, and in private with labor leaders and management; they visited southern mills, and held conferences with government officials in Washington.

At the outset Rep. Giles told his audience that years ago when textiles were the only industry in many Massachusetts cities and towns they discouraged and prevented other industries from coming into their communities.

Since World War II there have been many closings of Massachusetts mills and many others had removed to the South. These, he said, were due to a combination of factors. Among those factors giving the South an advantage in competition with Massachusetts mills are the workmen's compensation laws, unemployment compensation laws, the labor differential between North and South, the laws relating to the hours of employing women and children, the cost of constructing industrial property, technological developments, the attitude of manage-

Tyer Rubber Sees Employment Cut If Tariff Is Reduced

N. E. SYSTEM REQUIRES BIG INVESTMENT

An investment of $40,000 for each man and woman on the payroll is required to keep the New England Electric System operating efficiently, Irwin L. Moore, the system's president told department heads and supervisors of the system's companies in the northeastern Massachusetts area at a meeting in the Memorial auditorium Monday night.

Explaining that this figure was $34,000 higher than the average of about $6,000 per worker for all industry, Mr. Moore said that the total investment of New England Electric System in tools and equipment to supply service to customers and to pay wages and salaries amounts to over $380,000,000.

He told the group that the system's $120,000,000 construction and expansion program was about one-fourth completed and that during the year new generating facilities at Worcester, and Wilder, Vt., would come on the lines adding more than 65,000 kilowatts to the system's electric generating capacity.

Officials and employees of the Tyer Rubber company are very much concerned over a serious situation that threatens local employment through a bill being prepared at Washington for presentation to congress which would drastically reduce the tariff on imported rubber and canvas footwear.

The proposed reduction, they point out would bring foreign-made merchandise into this country at such low prices that domestic manufacture could not compete.

Tyer Rubber company officials have contacted Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin, Senators Leverett Saltonstall and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers in their effort to protect the local industry.

Other rubber manufacturers in Massachusetts, and their employees, are vitally interested in this proposed legislation and are organized to oppose its passage.

Locally it would mean a decline in employment and in payrolls which would vitally affect business concerns in Andover

Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co. Head Hits Trend to Public Ownership Says Municipalities Should Adopt Cooperative Attitude

BOSTON—A strong warning that municipalities of the state will have to take over the larger bus systems of Massachusetts unless there is a reversal in the present trend was issued by John I. Donovan, president of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., to an audience of 650 at the New England Transit Club.

Mr. Donovan's opinion was based on a trend that he said is general throughout the country and is especially strong among the large cities. He deplored the trend inasmuch as he believes the cities and the riding public generally are better off if private capital operates the lines; but he believes that he is on sound ground in making such a prediction because, he said, the entire history of the transit industry indicates that it suffers most when the inflationary cycle is strongest and the business is a paradox in that its patronage falls off sharpest in times of great prosperity. He said that the history of his own company indicated clearly that except for wars there had been a steady decline in the number of people using the buses when conditions generally are prosperous and people can afford to buy private cars.

He believes that instead of constantly asking private companies to make concessions, the city governments and town officials would be well advised to adopt a cooperative attitude if they wish to maintain the industry in the hands of private capital. He stated that recently his own company had a splendid example of what cooperation meant when it was asked to confer on various problems by the city government of Quincy. On the other hand, there were numerous instances where cities served by the Eastern were constantly pressuring the company for service that can be operated only at a loss, or to assume the burden of plowing streets when actually the company is in the position of any other taxpayer and has a right to expect the streets to be plowed in return for the taxes.

Briefly tracing the history of the industry from the horsecar days to the trolley and finally to the bus, Mr. Donovan stated that the greatest contributions of the transit industry have been in assisting in the growth of cities by making it possible for large populations to be carried to and from their work. He stated that New York was a city of 200,000 population without any effective method of transportation until the horsecars and the horse-drawn buses were provided.

The transit crisis that followed the first world war ended in public control for the state's two largest systems and since then a further step has been taken which makes the MTA now the property of the state. In the case of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, after 30 years of public control the company reverted to private control a year ago and the speaker believes it was without any disadvantage to the public.

The speaker proceeded then to describe some of the problems which have to be resolved if the present system of private ownership is to prevail.

TYER RUBBER SEES EMPLOYMENT CUT

where employees of the Tyer Rubber company do their buying.

Company officials note that due to the past two mild winters production has fallen off and employment at the local plant has declined.

In 1948 the Tyer Rubber company had 1076 production employees. This number in 1950 has been reduced to 697.

At the same time the records from April, 1948, to April, 1950 show that the weekly production has dropped 40 percent.

Their concern with the action being proposed at Washington is that the cheaper made goods would undersell those of American manufacture with the result that there would be a further drop in production and a consequent increase in unemployment.

Employees are aware of the serious situation that confronts them and are preparing to join with the company in organized opposition to the bill.

What Our Readers Say —

CONTRADICTS HIMSELF

Editor of the Townsman:

Dear Sir:

With an admirable flash of good sense Commander Wrigley, American Legion post 8, states, in the first issue of the restyled Townsman, that "Whenever we have faced a danger we've linked arms and gone forward together. We'll never let differences of race, religion, or ancestry divide us. That's why in war and peace America is unbeatable."

However, he violently contradicts himself by further stating: "Well the time has come for 19 million vets to show a little of that 'all for one and one for all' spirit in their own interests."

Again denying his own call for unity he says, "If these birds (I presume he refers to those men who have the wit to comprehend that powerful nations have fallen because of danger from within as often as from danger from without) have their way disabled vets will no longer have their own hospitals."

The question is then, how to reconcile a plea that race, religion or ancestry should not divide us, with a vociferous demand that similar groups, determined merely by other qualifications, such as veterans have their own special places of receiving obligations from the public?

Using that same logic victims of automobile accidents could demand their own hospitals on the ground that the automobile business contributes enormously to our general welfare and prosperity, as well as creates a large amount of the taxes that pay for obligations to veterans.

Sincerely yours,

KARL HAARTZ

SHAWSHEEN PTA

The pupils and teachers of the Shawsheen school certainly earned the week's vacation which they are now enjoying. The program which they presented at the PTA meeting last Friday evening was exceptionally well done and was greatly enjoyed by a capacity audience of parents and friends in the school auditorium. The program opened with a piano solo by Mary Anne Faggiano. This was followed by a welcome song by Mrs. Parker's first grade with Betty Anne Michelski and Alice Jo Mooney as soloists.

"Here Comes Peter Cotton-tail" was the next number, featuring Robert Hanson as Peter. Miss O'Donnell's first grade then presented "Sunbonnet Sally and Overall Jim." The chorus of girls in pastel sunbonnets and boys in dungarees and straw hats, was led by Judy Clarkson and Grant Whitman. The children of the second grade, with Beverly Anne Winters as leader, made a very fine toy orchestra.

Grades 3, 4, 5, and 6 comprised the cast and chorus of the operetta "Sleepy Head" which was the feature attraction of the evening. The stage was set for a birthday party with balloons and paper streamers making a very pretty background. Mary Anne Faggiano took the part of Judy, the party hostess, and Bobby Waters as Dopey and Carol Emerick, as Ivy, had the principal singing roles. Bobby Winters as the Ghost of Hendrik Hudson, and the gnomes, Marjorie Ortstein, David Best, Mary Ellen Winters, Lynne Cotter, Ted Dwyer, Betsy Caswell and Jimmy Winters, cavorted about in great glee. Other guests at the party were, Gail Marland, Jane Henrick, Frank White, Richard Davis, Billy Nightingale, Judy Goldman, Gail Titcomb, Carolyn Murphy, Rita Esile, Frank Quint, Ward Hayward, and Robert Jordan.

The teachers and Mrs. McArdle, the music supervisor, are to be congratulated on the very fine performance and the youthful actors and singers must come in for their share of glory also.

At the short business meeting, which preceded the program, the names of the officers of the PTA for 1950-1951 were presented by the nominating committee as follows: Walter Davis, for president; Mrs. Allen Flye, first vice-president; Mrs. Robert Waters, second vice-president; Mrs. T. Edwin drew, secretary; Wallace Fiedler, treasurer; and for directors, Mrs. John Hewitt, Herbert Ortstein, and Miss Eunice O'Donnell. The nominating committee consisted of Mrs. Francis Leone, chairman; Mrs. Alan Dunlop and Paul McKinnon. The next meeting will be the annual one with a banquet in the school gymnasium at 6:30 p. m., and a business meeting at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium, Wednesday, May 10.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

PROTECT OUR INDUSTRIES

Measures to curb the migration of the textile industry from Massachusetts must be taken promptly in order to protect those remaining here.

This is the gist of a message given to members of the Andover Service club recently by Rep. Frank J. Giles Jr., of Methuen, member of the special legislative commission appointed last year to investigate the state's industry.

His observations were made after the commission held a number of hearings, made trips to southern mills, and conferred with officials at Washington.

The picture he presented showed the state slowly losing ground to southern competition in the textile field due to a combination of factors that included restrictive laws, taxation, delay of management to replace old machinery, greater production of southern workers, reluctance by labor to accept technological advances, and inadequate advertising of the advantages to be found in Massachusetts.

Employment figures, he noted, may be misleading as many are still carried on payrolls as "employed" when they work only a few days a week, or only one week in two or three.

The plight of Massachusetts may be realized when it is noted that there are 43 distress areas in the nation and five of them, Rep. Giles, said, in the textiles areas of this state.

To promote the economic welfare of the commonwealth free enterprise must continue and immediate steps taken to protect the industry that provides so many jobs.

The legislator offered several recommendations to overcome the difficulties. A national minimum wage law of $1.05, reduction of corporation taxes modernization of machinery, and social reforms on a national level would greatly benefit the state and its workers.

He urged all business and professional men to take a greater interest in their government, and further recommended that government, labor and management get closer together and work in a real cooperative spirit for the advancement of the state and its industries recommendations with which all can concur.

The desire of knowledge, like the thirst of riches, increases ever with the acquisition of it. — Sterne

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force. Their thoughts rule the world. — Emerson

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago — April 1900

At the regular grange meeting held this month the subjects for discussion were: "Is it as easy for a young man to get a start in life to-day as it was in the days of his father?" "What is your opinion of monopolies and trusts?"

Members of the Andover Country club spent Patriot's day at the quarters of the club in Boxford.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lamont announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret T. to George M. Naylor of Peekskill, New York.

A number of the grand army men attended the campfire and reception to the Commander-in-chief Albert D. Shaw of the National G. A. R. at Boston, on Patriots' day.

The fire department was called to a fire near S. H. Bailey's house and farm buildings on Porter rd. The fire started about 2 a.m. in Manning's woods, but it wasn't until nearly 3 o'clock that it was found necessary to sound an alarm. The fire was subdued by the hard efforts of many Phillips students, neighbors and the fire department. Mr. Bailey and Prof. Forbes both deemed it wise to remove their live stock and carriages to places of safety.

25 Years Ago — April 1925
Miss Katherine Week of this town has been chosen assistant business manager of the Wheaton Handbook, a publication by Wheaton college undergraduates. The Punchard baseball season opens with a game with Johnson high school at the playstead.

The Andover Musical clubs played at the joint concert given by the Andover and Exeter musical clubs at Exeter recently.

James F. Greeley and daughter, Anna, will leave soon on a trip to Washington, D. C.

Plans have been completed by the Andover Christian Endeavor union for the entertainment of 1500 Christian Endeavorers from all over Essex county on Apr. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lundgren have returned to their home on Elm st. after spending several weeks in Florida.

10 Years Ago — April 1940
The Lawrence General Hospital building fund drive came to a successful conclusion with nearly $30,000 more being subscribed over its goal. Andover contributed $15,281 leading the suburban towns.

The seventh anniversary of the British War veterans will be held at the guild with a supper at 6:30 followed by a history of the organization, with dancing to follow.

The Punchard High baseball team opens its season at the Ballardvale playstead against the alumni. It will be the first game under the tutelage of William McDonald, who was last week appointed coach to succeed Gene Lovely, who retired because of pressure of scholastic business. Gene had been mentor for over a quarter of a century.

The town will receive a valuable gift at the American Legion meeting in their rooms when Stafford Lindsay will make a presentation of an oxygen tent to Selectman Howell F. Shepard.

VIEWS OF THE NEWS

BY LEONARD F. JAMES

The foreign policy of the United States has dropped to its lowest point since 1945. The President's claim that conditions are better than at any time since 1946 won't stand up against honest scrutiny. Mr. Truman is probably whistling in the dark. But the blame for our present absurd position cannot be blamed upon the President. It must fall upon those who are determined to make political capital out of the attempt to label Secretary of State Acheson a "pro-communist."

Foreign Policy Hurt By Investigations

As citizens we would be remarkably lacking in political astuteness if we allowed ourselves to believe that Mr. Acheson and the F.B.I. are deliberately encouraging communists within the state department. We would be dismally trusting if we were to swallow all the present guff that Mr. Acheson is playing into the hands of the Russians. It is becoming increasingly difficult not to think that the present spectacle in Washington is giving the Russians convincing proof that the United States is incapable of a long-range, sustained foreign policy.

If there are communists in the government, then the job of clearing them out can be done systematically and quietly. Effective action of this sort does not need all the ballyhoo of a county fair. If close watch against communist agents demands such a spectacle as we have been watching these past weeks, we may as well resign ourselves to years of congressional name-calling, wild accusations, investigations and interruption of a consistent foreign policy.

Russia Could "Plant" Evidence

The Russians would be fools indeed not to take their cue from Washington's behavior. Moscow's policy includes sabotage and underground activities, and they can be counted on not to let up in their techniques. If the Kremlin boys are smart—and they are by recent evidence — then they will probably try to help their cause by supplying us with planted evidence to keep us in a constant uproar. Apparently the most effective way to throw a wrench into our foreign policy is to send Congress hunting for communists. Russian strategists will take note of our one-track minds and see to it that we go down a side-path and leave the main road to them.

Have Investigations served us?

In what ways have the present accusations in the senate proved of any real value? Can many people really believe that their interests are being served? What has happened to our foreign policy since the beginning of the year? Few of us face up to that question and make a serious effort to answer it. Perhaps it is easier to join the chorus of the ignorant and the self-interested and jump on the band-wagon of denunciation, careless of where we're headed. If that's what we want, then there's nothing more to be said. But should disaster strike when we are unprepared, don't let's try to shift the blame. While we sit by and through our silence give consent to the political shenanigans against Acheson and the state department we condone the proceedings. The ballyhoo wouldn't last long if we showed our disapproval. Then two jobs could be done. Communist agents could be removed from the government, and our foreign policy could be resumed.

Where Is Our Statecraft?

If, of course, we know what we mean by foreign policy! Our position of world leadership is being rapidly scuttled for the sake of political ambitions and self-interest. Is this too strong a statement? Well then can we answer one question? What is our over-all foreign policy? The answer can't be merely "defend America's interest." That's the obvious objective. Policy must include a course of action—what is usually understood by "statecraft" or "political sagacity." Could an honest observer credit us with political sagacity at this point?

What is our policy in the Far East. Congress seems to be pursuing two contradictory lines of action. Assistance is advocated for Formosa, while suggestions are made that we turn American-occupied south Korea over to the Russians. What is our policy in western Europe? Do we mean to continue Marshall Plan aid or don't we? We can't turn this on and off like a water-faucet and expect to get anywhere. Do we realize that our future safety depends upon what happens to western Europe? Add these up, is a survey and they still come to the same query. What do we want to do in foreign affairs?

Foreign Policy Is Unspectacular

Congress does not seem to know what it wants as a positive foreign policy. Mr. Acheson has resumed but his voice has been drowned out. Is there not one intrepid enquirer who dares to raise a voice either in support of Mr. Acheson or to demand of Congress where we are going?

Denunciation and accusations are colorful. Photographers' bulbs flash, the movie cameras grind out exciting moments of charge and counter-charge across the table. But this is all a side show, as useful as the bearded lady and the sword swallower. The gullible fall for it—and pay much more than it is worth.

Mr. Acheson's job is slow and unspectacular, as is any consistent foreign policy. It can offer no heroic, popular slogans of sudden dramatic results. It is a tedious course that should be respected as such and receive the confidence of the people whose interests are to be served. It cannot always be successful. Our opponent is ruthless and alert and he will win a round sometimes, or else he wouldn't be worth worrying about. But if his momentary victory is to be regarded as treason within our government, we might as well fold our hands in despair.

Is there no man within our government courageous enough to take a stand and insist upon a policy for the United States? We can't afford to wait for him much longer.

Preservation of Antiques

The Antique department of the club met last Friday afternoon at the Andover Historical society house for their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. E. V. Turkington was the speaker and she gave a very interesting and amusing picture of the changes in her life since moving from the urban community of Melrose to Middlebury, Vt. Many of the members brought interesting pieces of glass from their collections to a glass clinic which was conducted at the meeting. Mrs. Turkington gave many valuable hints on how to distinguish between old and new glass.

Delicious refreshments were served by the committee under the direction of Mrs. Earle Waddington and Mrs. William Bride, co-chairmen. The tea table was beautifully decorated with a burgundy cloth and pink roses. Mrs. Alexander Morris poured.

The next meeting of the group will be on Friday, May 12 when they will make a tour of the Towle silver factory in Newburyport. The transportation committee, Mrs. J. Everett Collins and Mrs. Edwin L. Bramley, request that all members planning to make this trip notify them so that adequate transportation may be provided.

GARBAGE

Nobody really likes to handle garbage. It's a disgusting task. But today, there's no excuse for continuing to do it.

DISPOSALL*

flushes away food waste before it becomes garbage

With a G-E Disposall unit installed in your sink, garbage collecting is a thing of the past. Peel apples in the sink—let potato peelings fall there. Put bones, fat, gristle, wastage from lettuce—in fact, food waste of practically all sorts—into the drain outlet of the sink.

Then give the Safety Twistop Control a twist to the left. Let the cold water run a few seconds. The Disposall unit automatically goes into action, and whisk!—food waste is shredded into tiny particles and flushed down the drain!

Safe, simple, sanitary. Drain lines are scoured—won't clog. The Disposall is self-cleansing—it and your sink remain glistening bright, sweet and clean.

Usable with either sewer or septic tank.

ment, and advertising. As an illustration of the effect of the workmen's compensation law he took a million dollar payroll and showed that it cost a Massachusetts mill $12,000 while in some of the southern states it would be only $4100.

The average corporation taxes, he pointed out, were three percent in the nation while in Massachusetts it is seven percent.

He also said that the average worker in the South also produces more than the worker in the North due to the new machinery used in the southern industry. There also has been a slow migration of skilled labor southward where, with modern equipment, they operate more machinery than in the North.

The cost of constructing industrial property was much less in the South where plants are spread over acres and many of them built only one story high.

To advertise the advantages of Massachusetts he said, an appropriation of $140,000 was made last year while a neighboring state spent $2,000,000. This year, he pointed out, the ways and means committee had reduced the local appropriation to $77,000.

He said that there are 43 distress areas in the nation at the present time and five of them are in Massachusetts where many thousands are unemployed.

In conclusion he offered several recommendations which were the result of his own observations. They included a national minimum wage law of $1.05 an hour, reduction in the corporation taxes of Massachusetts, enlarge the advertising facilities of the state, labor to continue to accept the technological changes, modernization of plants, and until such time as social reforms are placed on a national level this state should mark time.

He urged business men and professional men to take more interest in government and felt that conditions in the state could be corrected if government, labor and management worked together in a cooperative spirit.

Pres. Walter E. Buxton presided at the dinner meeting which was opened with blessing by the Rev. William G. Cullen, O.S.A., of Merrimack college.

Irving J. Whitcomb, Atty. Roland H. Sherman, Chester W. Holland and Dr. William V. Emmons were appointed on a committee for sponsoring the visiting nurse which with Red Cross chapter will drop June 30. The club will organize a visiting nurse's association and guide it through the first year.

The next meeting will be held April 27 with Harold W. Leitch in charge of the entertainment.

P. A. Sports...

Johnny Arnold of Boston, veteran right hander, was on the mound for Andover Saturday, in the opening game of the 1950 season against Worcester academy. The game was rained out in the seventh, with Andover leading 7-2.

Baseball coach George Follansbee has uncovered an interesting pitching prospect in the person of Jim Palmer of Drexel Hill, Pa. Jim starred in soccer and basketball the two previous terms, and came out for first base at the first pre-season practice session. Captain Dick Bell of Rye, N. Y., who can play any spot on the diamond, is starting as first-string catcher this season, and Bob Cuthbertson of Greenwich, Conn., is another promising contender for this slot. Joe Wennik, who lives in Andover, is sure of the second base berth, although he is only a second-year student.

Coach Tiny Littleton's lacrosse squad open their season today against Lowell Textile school. The coaching staff has been reinforced this year by the addition of Dick Lux, Andover math instructor, who played first string for Pennsylvania last year.

Co-captains Rod Starke of Durham, N. Y. and Dick Gifford of New York City will start at goal and attack positions, respectively, and several players have come up from last year's JV squad to boost the total number to thirty.

Tennis and golf both are getting under way as the season gets warmer, and prospects for both look good. A practice meet with the Harvard Grads will help Coach Con Banta cut his squad to suitable size before the opening tennis matches with Tufts Freshmen on May 3.
